PROFESSIONAL DELEGATES TO THE GOVERNOR'S CONFERENCE ARE ANNOUNCED

One hundred librarians, trustees, library educators, and information specialists will be official delegates to the S.C. Governor's Conference on Library and Information Services, March 15-17, 1978. Nominations were made by state professional organizations which were asked to consider such factors as geographical distribution, racial representation, administrator/staff or professional/non-professional representation, and representation of libraries within the group (large/small, four year/two year institutions, public/private, or elementary/high school). The Delegate Selection Sub-Committee of the Conference Advisory Committee reviewed nominations to insure that the required cross section was achieved.

Official delegates are required to attend one of the ten regional pre-conferences (see the August newsletter) as preparation for the Governor's Conference. Other library personnel and citizens are also urged to attend the pre-conferences. Provision has been made for up to 150 persons to attend the Governor's Conference as observers, coming at their own expense. This group will be selected from individuals attending the pre-conferences who express an interest in being an observer.

SOUTHERN LITERATURE THEME OF UPCOMING CONVENTION

"Literature of the South" will be the theme of the 52nd annual convention of the South Carolina Library Association to be held at the Carolina Inn in Columbia on October 12-14, 1978. Featured speakers at general session meetings will be Robert King, Director of the University of South Carolina Press; Eugenia Price, author; and Louis Rubin, Distinguished Professor of English at the University of North Carolina. Other speakers will include Peggy Parish, children's author, at the JMRT luncheon and J. Mitchell Reames, Librarian, Francis Marion College, at the SCLA breakfast. The SCLA banquet will feature entertainment in the form of "Carolina Alive," a USC entertainment group.

Topics of section meetings held on Friday will include: College and University Libraries-The Multiple Roles of the Academic Librarian; Special Libraries-Teaching, a New Service for Special Librarians; Public Libraries and Trustees-Preparing for the 1980's, Computers for Big and Small Libraries; School Libraries and Children's/Young People-Getting the Book from Writer to Reader; Library Administration-Expanded Guidelines for South Carolina Committee for the Humanities; and Public Services-Besieged, Bothered and Bewildered: Coping with Patron Related Crises.

Pre-registration ($5.00 for members, $10.00 for South Carolina non-members) and meal reservations should be mailed to Mrs. Lynn Barron, Executive Secretary, SCLA, 108 Dantzler Street, St. Matthews, South Carolina 29135 before September 20. Persons planning to attend are urged to make hotel reservations early as the convention coincides with the University of South Carolina homecoming and the state fair.

Registration will open at 10:00 a.m. on October 12 with exhibits opening at noon the same day. The convention is scheduled to adjourn at 11:30 a.m., October 14.

CANDIDATES FOR SCLA OFFICES

The Nominating Committee of the South Carolina Library Association has presented a slate of candidates for SCLA offices in the coming year. For Vice-President, President-Elect: John Landrum, Director of Readers Services, South Carolina State Library, and Carl Stone, Director of the Anderson County Library. For Second Vice-President: Verena Bryson, Assistant Director of Community Services, Greenville County Library, and William Cooper, Director of the Laurens County Library. For Secretary: Mary Frances Griffin, Library Consultant, South Carolina Department of Education, and Bernice Middleton, Chairman, Department of Library Service, South Carolina State College. For Treasurer: Tom Marcil, Head, Circulation Department, Cooper Library, University of South Carolina.

LABOR - HEW FUNDS

The Senate Appropriations Committee completed consideration of the Labor - HEW Appropriations Bill (HR 12929) and issued a report (H.Rept. 95-1119) on August 16. With the exception of $35,000 for the National Commission on Libraries and Information Science, the Senate report contains no changes from amounts recommended by the Senate Labor - HEW Appropriation Subcommittee as reported in the July newsletter. The Senate bill incorporates across the board cuts totalling 5% which are also contained in the House version.

LIBRARY PROGRAM OFFICER CHANGE

Miss Shirley Brother, who served for 11 years as the Library Program Officer for South Carolina, has been reassigned to a different region by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Due to a centralization move by HEW, the number of regional officers has been reduced from 10 to 6. Miss Brother will be followed by Mr. Laurence Leonard who will now oversee administration of LSCA funds in South Carolina.

SOLAR ENERGY WORKSHOPS TO BE HELD ACROSS STATE

Three regional workshops will be held during September to acquaint reference librarians in public libraries with the Solar Technology Transfer Project.

The project, sponsored by the Oak Ridge National Laboratory under the direction of the Southeastern Library Association, is intended to provide the general public with consumer-oriented information through the state's public libraries. The South Carolina State Library, in cooperation with the South Carolina Energy Management Office, is administering the project in South Carolina.

The regional workshops orienting reference librarians to this program are scheduled as follows: Greenville County Library (September 12), Richland County Public Library (September 13), and the Charleston County Library (September 14).

During September, public libraries will receive a collection of basic materials relating to solar technology for reference use. To supplement these materials, the State Library will acquire a collection of technical publications dealing with solar energy which will be available through interlibrary loan.

ENERGY INFORMATION LINE

The South Carolina Energy Management Office is sponsoring an energy information telephone service. The service is primarily intended for persons interested in residential energy conservation. Questions of a highly technical nature or consumer complaints cannot be handled. The Office has packets of publications covering energy-saving ideas and guidelines available on request. The number of the toll-free line is 800 - 922-1500.

SELA/SWLA CONFERENCE

"Beyond Regional Bounds" will be the theme of the joint Southeastern/Southwestern Library Association conference to be held at the New Orleans Hilton on October 5-8, 1978. Speakers at the general session meetings will be O.B. Hardison, Jr., Director, Folger Shakespeare Library; Eileen D. Cook, Director of the ALA Washington Office; and Ruth L. Tighe, Program Coordinator, White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services. One of the highlights of the conference will be a brunch honoring authors Eudora Welty and Angie Debo.

Pre-registration for the conference should be mailed prior to September 25. Information on registration is available from Joanne Euster, Loyola University Library, 6363 St. Charleston Avenue, New Orleans, Louisiana 70118.

GREENVILLE LIBRARY EXPANDS CHILDREN'S AND PARENT'S PROGRAM

Now in its second year, the Greenville County Library's Project Little Kids initiated several new programs during the summer. "PEP Time" (Preschool Enrichment Program) is a program for 3-year olds focusing on language skills. Parents of children participating in the PEP program and in story hours meet together in weekly "Parent Talk" sessions. These 30-minute classes cover topics relating to children and community services available to families. Discussion topics have included "What to look for in a day care center," "Creative activities at home for preschoolers," and "Snacks for preschoolers." The library has also conducted several workshops for parents during evening hours.

LIBRARY WORKSHOPS SCHEDULED AT USC

The University of South Carolina College of Librarianship will sponsor several one-day workshops in the fall. The middle school learner will be the topic of a workshop on September 9. On September 19, the College will sponsor a workshop on women in library management which will cover recognition of barriers to advancement, self-concepts, and preparation for management positions. Zero-base budgeting and its implications for libraries will be examined at a workshop on November 18. Continuing education units may be earned through attendance at the workshops. To obtain more information, call 777-3858, 777-2129, or 777-2909.

Other workshops that are tentatively scheduled for spring, 1979 will cover library services for gifted children, the general librarian and health sciences literature, evaluation of school library media services, rural information services, teaching skills involved in library instruction, and AACR-Second edition.

CLEMSON LIBRARY LINKS WITH LOCKHEED DIALOG SERVICE

The Clemson University Library's Science and Technology Division recently acquired a computer terminal in order to connect with Lockheed's DIALOG bibliographic retrieval system. Currently the service is being offered to faculty members and students working under grant-supported research programs. Funds for the service are being paid by academic departments or grant programs whose faculty members make use of the system.

NEWS FROM DIVISION FOR BLIND AND PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED

Two librarians from the South Carolina State Library Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped - James B. Johnson, Jr., and Frances Case - will attend the Biennial Conference of Librarians Serving the Blind and Physically Handicapped in Washington, D.C. on October 16-20, 1978. The conference, sponsored by the Library of Congress, will carry the theme, "Service to Readers: A Shared Responsibility." Mr. Johnson will participate in a panel session on local public education programs during the conference.

The award presented by the South Carolina State Library Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped to the Telephone Pioneers of America was featured in the July/August, 1978 issue of Update. Update is a bi-monthly newsletter published by the Library of Congress National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped. The article described volunteer efforts of the Telephone Pioneers in repairing talking book machines in South Carolina.

NATIONAL EMPLOY THE HANDICAPPED WEEK

National Employ the Handicapped Week (October 1 - 7, 1978) presents libraries with an outstanding chance to encourage full opportunities for handicapped people. It is an excellent time for libraries to call attention to the services they offer to people with disabilities. James B. Johnson, Jr., Director of the South Carolina State Library Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, will be happy to work with libraries on a display. The State Library can provide brochures and posters that explain services offered and other materials for demonstration. A poster which contains other ideas for observance of National Employ the Handicapped Week were to be sent to libraries in August. If these posters fail to arrive, contact Mr. Johnson at the South Carolina State Library Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped. The President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped has made several suggestions to libraries in observing this week: Let handicapped people and the news media know of the services you offer to people with disabilities - especially those who are homebound. If your library provides a special service to business or labor, consider including information on employment of handicapped people.

PERIODICALS LIST PUBLISHED

A third edition of "The I-85 Union List of Periodical Holdings" was issued in July. The union list, compiled by Robert Perrin, Director of the University of South Carolina--Spartanburg Library, reflects the holdings of twenty libraries primarily in the Spartanburg area. In addition to Spartanburg area libraries, periodical holdings are also reported for the University of South Carolina regional campus libraries across the state.

ACCESSIBILITY REQUIREMENTS DEFINED FOR SMALLER PUBLIC BUILDINGS

On August 6, HEW issued a policy interpretation clarifying how small, modestly-financed institutions such as small libraries might implement the accessibility requirements of the regulations for Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (PL 93-112) prohibiting discrimination against the handicapped. The following statement of HEW Secretary Joseph Califano explains the policy interpretation:

Today we are issuing a policy interpretation, of particular interest to small, modestly-financed institutions, clarifying Section 504 of the 1973 Rehabilitation Act. This is the law that prohibits discrimination on the basis of handicap.

In this interpretation, the Department makes it clear that rural libraries, day care centers, senior citizen centers and similar small facilities have flexibility in the ways they achieve compliance with the requirement that programs be accessible to handicapped persons.

The need for clarification was illustrated a few months ago when the Department learned of a small rural library in Rudd, Iowa, whose administrator believed expensive structural changes would be needed in order to comply with Section 504. The administrator feared the library would have to close. The policy issued today reinforces the decision the Department made at that time--that compliance could be achieved without large expenditures. A library building with one room and an entrance with several steps can be brought into compliance by installation of a simple wooden ramp, by use of a bookmobile, by special messenger service or clerical aid, or by any other means that make the resources of the library available to a handicapped person.

An additional option is available for small institutions or facilities that have fewer than 15 employees and that provide health, welfare, or other social services. These recipients of HEW funds may refer handicapped persons to another provider with accessible facilities who is willing to provide the services.

This interpretation clarifies the position that HEW will take in its enforcement of Section 504. We will require full compliance with the law, so that handicapped persons are not denied access to facilities funded by this agency. At the same time, we will enforce this requirement flexibly and reasonably, taking into account, the limited resources of many small institutions.

The text of the policy interpretation itself (Policy Interpretation No. 3) was published in the August 14 Federal Register (pp. 36034-5) or can be obtained from HEW's Office for Civil Rights, Room 5412, North Building, 330 Independence Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20201.

The College of Librarianship, University of South Carolina, will sponsor a librarianship colloquium on "Women in Librarianship" at the Belk Auditorium, Business Administration Building, USC-Columbia Campus, on September 18 at 8:00 p.m. Ms. Jane Robbins Carter, School Library Science, Louisiana State University, will speak at the session.

UNORDERED MERCHANDISE

As a reminder, federal laws concerning mailing and receipt of unordered merchandise are reproduced below from the U.S. Code of Laws, Title 39, Section 3009:

- (a) Except for (1) free samples clearly and conspicuously marked as such and (2) merchandise mailed by a charitable organization soliciting contributions, the mailing of unordered merchandise of communications prohibited by sub-section (c) of this section constitutes an unfair method of competition and an unfair trade practice in violation of section 45(a)(1) of Title 15.
- (b) Any merchandise mailed in violation of subsection (a) of this section, or within the exceptions contained therein, may be treated as a gift by the recipient, who shall have the right to retain, use, discard, or dispose of it in any manner he sees fit without any obligation whatsoever to the sender. All such merchandise shall have attached to it a clear and conspicuous statement informing the recipient that he may treat the merchandise as a gift to him and has the right to retain, use, discard, or dispose of it in any manner he sees fit without any obligation whatsoever to the sender.
- (c) No mailer of any merchandise mailed in violation of subsection (a) of this section, or within the exceptions contained therein shall mail to any recipient of such merchandise a bill for such merchandise or any dunning communications.
- (d) For the same purposes of this section, "unordered merchandise" means merchandise mailed without the prior expressed request or consent of the recipient.

STATE AID FOR LOUISIANA

The Louisiana State Library has received an appropriation from the state of $1,516,213 for State Aid for public libraries. This marks the first time state funds will flow to public libraries, and hopes are running high that this will be a continuing annual program. According to Thomas Jaques, State Librarian, the money can be used to buy only library materials. Local support must be maintained, and only those libraries which provide library services parishwide are eligible to receive a grant. Distribution will be made on a per capita basis (about 38¢ per capita) to eligible libraries.

A New Books Showcase sponsored by the Baker and Taylor Co. will be held on September 21 and 22 at the Sheraton Biltmore in Atlanta. The two-day program will feature Alice B. Ihrig, Chairman of the American Library Association's White House Conference Planning Committee; Betsy Hearne, Children's Book Editor for Booklist; and Warren Wallenstein, Director of Production at Dial Press. For more information, contact Ted Scribner, Baker and Taylor, 1515 Broadway, New York, New York 10036 (212 - 730-7650).

PUBLIC LIBRARY NOTES

ABBE Regional: During June and July, the library presented puppet shows at each of its 8 branches as well as at the 4 main county libraries of the ABBE regional system. The Barnwell County Library staged its second annual pet show on August 1. On August 9, the Aiken County Public Library held its second annual arts, crafts and plants exhibit. Story hour features of the summer reading club have included programs presented by the Aiken-Barnwell Mental Health Center, South Carolina Electric and Gas personnel, local fire departments, the CSRA magic club, and various individual volunteers. The Aiken County and Edgefield County libraries also held special film festivals for young people. During June, the Bamberg County Library was the site of an art exhibit by adult students enrolled in a local art class.

Chapin Memorial Library: The library was the topic of an article appearing in a recent issue of the Charlotte Observer. Ken Allen, a reporter with the newspaper, chose the library as the subject of one of his daily columns written about the Myrtle Beach area.

Cherokee County: The library celebrated the conclusion of its summer reading program with parties using South Carolina peaches for a theme. Activities included bobbing for peaches, a peach roll, relay races, passing games, how many peaches in the basket, etc. The parties held at two library branches carried out the theme of Cherokee County's Peach Festival.

Chester County: The library reports its most successful reading program to date. Four hundred forty-five children joined the club and completed 10 books during the summer. One hundred eighty members attended a final carnival celebration to mark the club's successful conclusion.

Colleton County: The library sponsored a children's art show recently. Approximately 75 pieces of work were exhibited.

Fairfield County: The Workshop Theatre of South Carolina recently gave a performance of "The Golden Touch" at the library. Approximately 50 children attended this Saturday morning event.

Lancaster County: The library recently received a $35,000 donation to purchase a new bookmobile.

Lexington County: The library has organized a menu and information file on area restaurants for patrons to browse.

Richland County: The Richland County Public Library and the Lexington County Library jointly sponsored a party at the Riverbanks Zoo to celebrate the end of the libraries' summer reading programs. Activities for reading club members included puppet shows, skits, and games.

The Tri-County TEC Library recently installed a checkpoint security system. The library has also devised a system for answering patron's questions and complaints. A "white sheet" containing space for patrons' comments on one side and the library's reply on the other has been printed and made available.
